Kindergarten Activity Report
2023-2024 school year

Class: Senior class

Date : 2 November 2023 29th

Activity name: K 3- Legislative Council Complex guided tour and educational activities

Activity goal: Visit the Legislative Council Complex to learn about the building's facilities, and then use story-based activities to stimulate children's thinking, increase their understanding of the legislative body, and cultivate good citizenship in them.

Activity content:

Guided tour: Children visit the Legislative Council Complex, guiding them to understand the different facilities in the building, such as conference halls, office areas, libraries, etc. The tour guide can explain the functions and functions of the different parts and answer questions from young children .

Activity results:

1. Knowledge : Children can learn about the functions and working methods of the legislative council by visiting the Legislative Council Complex, and increase their knowledge and understanding of government institutions.
2. Skills : Through activities, children can develop awareness of civic responsibility and participation. They are able to better understand the role of citizens in decision-making and law-making and are aware of their responsibilities and obligations as citizens.
3. Attitude : Through visits and story extension activities, children can experience and participate personally, stimulating their interest in government and public affairs. This interactive learning method helps to increase students' interest and participation in learning.

suggestion:

1. Provide relevant pre-knowledge: Before the activity, children can be provided with some basic knowledge about the operations of the legislature and government so that they can better understand and participate in the activity.
2. Guide thinking and discussion: During story extension activities, children are encouraged to ask questions, express opinions and conduct group discussions. This promotes the development of their thinking and critical thinking skills.
3. Create opportunities for interaction and participation: Design some interactive links, such as role-playing, group activities or simulated debates, etc., to allow children to actively participate and express their opinions.
4. Encourage practical participation: Encourage young children to participate in civic activities in communities and schools, allowing them to transform their learning and awareness into practical actions, and cultivate practical civic participation abilities.

Through the above suggestions and activity arrangements, children's learning and development can be promoted. Through visits and interactive activities, they will gain practical experience in the legislative and civic responsibilities, enhance their understanding of and interest in government and public affairs, and cultivate good citizenship and values. At the same time, such activities can also help improve students' learning interest and participation and achieve activity goals.
