1. Increasing on-site staff: Make sure there are enough staff to provide supervision and guidance in all activity areas, especially those spaces present safety risks such as rope net and ramps with sharp edges. This helps resolving safety issues in time with providing necessary help and guidance.
2. Material replenishment station: A material replenishment station can be set in the Messy World to ensure that paints and other art supplies can be replenished in time. In this way, children will not be restricted due to shortage of supplies when creating.

In activity scene of Rope Net, children bring materials to the rope net to play games, including a snake doll and orange balloons. Happiness and positive emotions of children can be seen by their interaction. There are different roles among them in holding the head and tail of the snake doll separately, and work together to move the doll on the rope net.
